JASON SILVERMAN

HOT MESS BAND
FOUNDER

As founder of Hot Mess, Boston's multi-award-winning wedding and special events band, Jason Silverman wears many hats: CEO, vocalist, emcee, coordinator and certified party starter. Perhaps unsurprisingly, his passion for music and performance was realized at a very early age. He was only seven years old when he first took the stage.

"I seriously have the best job in the world," says Silverman. "I get to bring our unique, unparalleled brand of celebration to your special event and travel to the most gorgeous venues, partner with the most creative event professionals and work for the most incredible clientele."

A true musician, Silverman started out as a songwriter. He also says, "The musical education obtained by learning to play Sinatra, Prince, Taylor Swift, etcetera is immeasurable." He has an ear for talent, recruiting world-class musicians to fill his ensemble. Acting as musical chameleons, Hot Mess gets partygoers on the dance floor with a wide range of crowd-pleasing songs, from Top 40s to pop, rock, soul, funk and R&B.

A fully customizable experience, Hot Mess can seamlessly transform from nine to 14 musicians, augment lighting design and add more costume changes and choreography, depending on the client's needs and the scale of the wedding or event.

Silverman relishes any opportunity to perform for fundraising events, universities and local municipalities. "Giving back is a big part of both my personal and professional philosophy," he says. Through the years, he's worked with such organizations as The American Cancer Society, ALS One and The Travis Roy Foundation, just to name a few.
